depicting a barn interior with a rooster and chick eating a cabbage leaf, signed lower right 'E.Hunt', oil on board, 21.5 cm x 29.3 cm, within a giltwood inner-frame within a larger moulded giltwood frame

Famously known for his charming bucolic farmyard animal scenes, this work illustrates perfectly the oeuvre of Edgar Hunt. Coming from a humble background and meant to become a farmer, Hunt was able to portray through his artistic talents his love of animals and country life. During his artistic years, his works were on demand and patrons would want uncomplicated images to which they could relate immediately and without troublesome intellectual effort. Hunt also incorporated an element of sentimentality to elicit the maximum emotional response

Lot 310

Harry Robert Mileham (1873-1957) British portrait of a lady, in the Pre-Raphaelite style wearing purple draped clothing matching her hair ribbon, signed and dated lower left 'H.R.MILEHAM.1908', oil on canvas, reframed, 37 cm x 39 cm, within a later giltwood frame

Location:

Mileham was known for his historical paintings, but later focussed on stained glass designs, and produced several windows for churches throughout Britain. He worked for Cox & Barnard as a stained glass designer, and later designed some pieces for James Powell & Sons.

Often commissioned for portraits as a freelance artist, this work was likely privately commissioned. Stylistically we can find the distinctive influence of the contemporary taste for the Pre-raphaelite aesthetic, as found in all his work.
